BY CRANSTON & NORMAN 127 THAMES STREET.

UNIDAY MORNING, OCT. 24, 1861.

Address of Kossuth to the People of the United States.

Proceedingers of America! from your history, as from the star of hope in miningly gloom, we drew our confidence and resolution in the doubtful days of countrymen, this dreb ra ion as a trib-ute of gratitude. And you, excellent people, who were worthy to be chosen by the Almighty as an example to show the world how to deserve freedom, how to win it, and how to use it—you will allow that the Hungarians, though weaker and less fortunate than you, old European reciety, are not unworthy to be your imitators, and that you would be pleased to see the stars of your glorious flag emblazon the double cross of the Hungarian cont-of-arms. When despotism hurled defiance at us, and began the bloody war, your inspiring ex-ample upheaved the nation as one man, and legions, with all the means of war, appeared to rise from nothing, as the tender grass shoots up after spring

Though we were interior in numbera to the enemy, and could not compare with their well trained forces—though our arms were shorter than theirs—yel our arms were shorter than theirs—yel the heroic sons of Hungary supplied the want of numbers by indomitable bravery, and lengthened their weapons by a step further in advance.

The world knows how bravely the Hungarians fought. And it is not for me, who was identified with the warm-who obscine the wishes of the cotion.

who, obeying the wishes of the nation, stood faithfully at the helm of government-to extel the heroic deeds of my countrymen. I may mention, however, that, while every day it became more evident that the heart of Europe beat the pulsations of the Hungarian to me putsations of the Hungarian struggle, we maintained the unequal conflict alone, cut offfrom the rest of the world and all external aid, till a year-ago we laid the Itaughty power of the tyraat house of Hapsburg in the dust; and had it not been for the intentional and traitorous disregard of my commands he are of our leaders who affects mands by one of our leaders, who after-wards shamefully betrayed the country, not only would the imperiol family have heen driven from Vienna, but the entire Austrian nation would have been liberated; and though by such treason this base family saved themselves from decteretion, they were so far humbled in March, 1849, that, not knowing how to be just, they implored foreign aid, and threw theniselves at the feet of the

The Emperor hoped that the Hungarian people could be terrified by his threatenings and would prefer slavery to death; but he was deceived. He cold his own liberty to Russia for aid to enslave his people. The choice of a coward is to jurchase a meserable, eph-emeral existence, even though at the cest of his honor and independence.

The Austrians fought against us not only with arms and by the aid of trai-tors, but with studied and unceasing stander. They never ceased to impeach our matives and falsify our conduct, and aunt the protended justice of their own rause before the judgment-seat of pub-lic opinion. Efforts were constantly made to weaken among the people of Hungary, and among the rations of the world, that sympathy and force which opring from a righteous cause.

Free citizens of North America! you have given, in spite of these slanders the fullest sympathy for the cause of my country. We had no opportunity to explain to you our motives and conduct, and retate the libels against us but we said—and how truly your noble and magnanimous conduct shows it! that such a nation knows how to defend a just and holy cause, and will give us us a sympathy; and this conviction in tirted as with more confidence. Oh, that you had been a neighboring nation i—the Ohl World would now be free, and would not have to endure again those terrible convulsions and rivers of blood which are inevitable.

But the end is with God, and He will, choose the means to fulfil its purposes.

Ye great and free people I receive the thanks of my country for your noble sympathy, which was a great moral port in our terrible conflict.

Support in our terrible connect.
When the house of Austria sold itself with our hard-curned victory, but not subdued or exhausted, saw with apprehension the spectre of Russian invasion an invasion which violated the lawof nations, which wishted the laws of nations, which was openly hostile to the cause of civilization, the rights of ann, of order, and even to that principle which the diplomacy of Europe calls the balance of power. I could not be here that the governments of Europe would permit this invasion; for lexperted, they would intervene to effect a treaty of peace, if not so much on our account that they would intervene to effect a treaty of peace, if not so much on our account yet to prevent Austria becoming the vassal of Russia-to check the growing strength and influence of the latter power in the East.

We desired an honorable peace, and were willing to submit to any reasonable terms. We many times tendered the clive branch. We asked the conterpose. They heard us not. The haughty imperial family, forgetting that they were the real traitors, rejected expression that they did not treat with respect to that they did not treat with respect to that they did not treat with respect to the treat Aye, more : they threw our ambassadors into prison, and one of them-bassadors into prison, and one of them-the nublest of Hungary's sons—they conardly and implouely mundered.— Still we hestated to tear as under force or the bonds that unded us. Ten months are tought and beauty content asky er the bones that dilited us. Led months we lought, and i Pright victorinally, in defence; and it was only when every animpt to bring about in hotorable peace failed—when Francis Joseph, who never was our King, dared in dus man facto of the 4 h of March, 1849, In other the curse "that Hungary stoul," to let no longer"—when there was no hope of arresting the Russian invasion by dipomacy-when we saw that we must figit to save ourselves from being struck off the earth us a nation—when the house of Austria, by its endless acts of which would give the Czar a pretence, which he had long sought, to meddle with our affairs.

The Hangarian nation loved freedom as the best gift of God, but it never thought of commencing a crusade against Kings in the name of fiverty,— In Hungary there were none of those propagandists who alarm so much the rulers of the Old World. There were nor sere they what the conservatives call anarchists. The nation desired juscall anarchists. The nation desired justice, and knew how to be just to all, irrespective of rank, language, or religion. A people so worthy of freedom were generous enough to leave something to time, and to be satisfied with a progressive development. No violence was used; no just right, was attacked; and even some of those institutions were for meligaturized, which in their evipcileft undisturbed, which, in their principle and origin, were unjust, but which, inviog existed for centuries, could not be abolished at once with impunity.

The Hungarian people did not wish to oppress may—not even the aristocra-cy; they were more ready to make sacritices than to punish the descendants of nobility for the evils of misgovernment, and of those institutions which emunated from their ancestors; nor would they let the many suffer for the sins of

There was no anarchy among us.— Even in the bloodless conflicts, when the human passions are most excited, there was the most perfect order and security of property and person. How did the conduct of my noble countrymen compure with that of the "order-making" Austria! Whenever the whirlwind of war consed for a while where the social elements were left in chaos, the instinctive moral feetings of this incorruptible people, in the absence of all government, preserved better order and safety than legions of police. A common spirit animated the whole nation-no secret aims, no personal or local attacks, but a bold and open defence in the face of the world. Following the example of your great Washington, we adopted, as our policy, conciliation, justice, and legali-ty, and scrupulously observed the laws

The Russians and Austrians made the soil of Waliachia the basis of military operations; and the Turkish government which either knew not its own interests, or was unable to defend them silently permitted this violation of treaties and the rights of nations. thus humbing itself and betraying its own weak-ness. Several times we drops Several times we drove our enemics across the Wallachian boundaries; for it was only necessary for our victorious army to advance into the countries of the Lower Danube to rouse the inhabitants against the Russians, and to transfer the war to their own soil. But we respected the law of nations, and stopped our conquering forces on the confines of Wallachia. Her soil was sacred to us. Austria left Gallacia almost unprotected, and collected all her forces to attack us. Had we at this time sent a small portion of our army to Poland, it would have caused a general insurrection, and that heroic but unfortunate nation would have revenged herself by throwing the Russian empire into a state of revolution. But we acted in delence only, and we deemed it a sin to precipitate other nations into a terrible and uncertain war, and we clucked our sympathies. Besides, we avoided giving the Emperor of Russia a pretence for a war of retaliation against us. Oh, it was foolish—for the desputic hypocrite made a pretence: he called our own struggle the Hungarian-Polish revolution, though the whole number of Poles in our army did not exseed four thousand.

We doubted not that the European or that they would negotiate a peace for us, or that they would, at least, prevent the Russian invasion. They said they pitied us, honored our efforts, and condenned the conduct of Austria; but demned the conduct of Austria; but they could not help us, because Europe required n powerful Austrian empire, and they must support it, in spite of its evils, as a balance against Russio in central and castern Europe. What a misrake! What diplomacy! Is it not as clear as the son that the Czar, in aid-its Austria, would be it in each tentral property. ing Austria, would do it in such a mon-ner as to obtain the greatest advantages for himself? Was it not manifest that Austria -- who had always, through the help of Hungary, strength enough to oppose Russia-would, when she des troyed Hungary by Ruesian bayonets, no longer he an independent power, but merely the acant-garde of the Mosco-vite? Yet Europe permitted the inva-sion! It is an indebble mark of blindsion: It is an inaction made or onto the same shame. It is ever thus in the imbedie Old World. They treated us just as they treat Turkey. They assert just as they treat Turkey. They assert always that the peace of Europe and the balance of power require the preservation of the Turkish empire—that Tarkey must exist, to check the advance of the Cossack power. But not-withstanding this. England and France destroyed the Turkish fleet at Navari-no- a fleet which never could have in-jured them, but which might have contended with Russia in the Black Sea of the earth is a nation—when the house of Austria, by its endless note of injustice and cruelty, and by calling in the red of a foreign power, had extinguished in the hearts of the Hungarian graphe every years of affection—then, and then only, after so much patience, the nation resolved to declare its abosolate independence. Then spoke the National Assembly the words which had long heen uttered by every patriotic tongule: "Francis loseph thou beard-less young Nero! thou durest to say, then gary shall exist four ple, answer, We do and will exist; but you and your treacherous house shall stand no longer! You shall no more be Kings of Hungary! Re lorewer banished, ye perfidious traitors to the nation F We were not only ready to accept any terms that were honorable, but we carefully abstained from doing anything which would give the Czar a pretence.

There was a time when we, with the view or communication was recently addressive for the propose of the four partial and expensive diplomacy. There was a time when we, with the view or markets and expensive diplomacy.

There was a time when we, with the called God of Mercy freed my wite, and enabled but a legal to the ning place of exito. a miserable and expensive diplomacy. There was a time when we, with the neighboring Poles, saved Christianity in Europe. And now I hesitate not to avow before God, that we alone—that my own Hangary-could have saved Europe from Russian domination. As the war in Hungary advanced, its character became changed. In the end, the results it contemplated were higher and far more important—nothing less, in no secret societies plotting conspiracies.

My countrymen were not influenced by not thought of in the horizonta. not thought of in the beginning. This was not a choice; it was forced upon us by the policy of the European nations, who, disregarding their own interests, suffered Russia to invade and provoke us. Yes, we were marlyrs to the cause of freedom, and this glorious but painful destiny was imposed upon us. Though my dear native Hungary is trodden down, and the flower of her some executed, or wandering exiles, and the governor, writing from my presons in this distant Asiatic Turkey, I predict —and the eternal God hears my prediction—that there can be no freedom for the continent of Europe, and that the Cossacks from the shores of the Don will water their steeds in the Rhine, unless liberty be restored to Hungary. It is only with Hungarian freedom that the European nations can be free; and the smaller nationalities especially can have no future without us.

Nor could the united Russo-Austrian forces have conquered my heroic countrymen had they not found a traitor to and them in the man, whom, believing his honesty, and on account of his skill, I raised from obscurity. Enjoying my confidence, the confidence of the nation and the army, I placed him at the head rious part to perform ever granted to man. What an immortality was within his reach, had he been honest ! But he betrayed his country. Cursed be his name forever! I will not open the bleading wounds by the sad remembrance of this event, and will merely mention that the surrender at Yilages was the crowning act of a long system of treachery secretly practised—by not using the advantages which victories put in his hands—by not fulfilling my commands, under cumming pretences—by destroying national feeling in the animy—by weakening its confidence—and by the destruction, through unnecessary exposures and dangers, of that portion of the army that he could not corrupt in his base designs to make himself nilitary dictator. God, in his inscrutable wisdom, knows why the traiter was permitted to be successful. In vain tell the bravest of men in this long war—in vain were the exertions of my brave countrymen-in vain did the aged father send, with pious heart, his only son, the prop of his declining years, and the bride her bridegroom—in vain did all private interests yield to the loffest patriotism—in vain arose the prayers of a suffering p. ople—in vain did the ardent wishes of every friend of freedom acwishes of every friend of freeds accompany our efforts—in vain did the Genius of Liberty hope for success.—My country was martyred. Her rulers are hangmen. They have speken the impious words that the liberty-loving nation "lies at the feet of the Can." Instead of the thankful prayer of faith, of home and of layer the air of my paties. hope, and of love, the air of my native land is filled with the cries of despair, and f, her chosen leader, am an exile.— The diplomacy of Europe has changed Turkish hospitality to me and my com-panions into hopeless bondage. It is a panions into hopeless bondage. It is a painful existence. My youlkal chil-dren have begun the morning of their or the life in the hands of my country's dese: he troyer, and I—but no: desponding ariandoes not become me, for I am a man.—

whole I am not permitted, or I would say I envy the dead. Who is unfortunate? am in Broussa, where the great Hanni-bal once lived an exile, homeless like myself, but rich in services performed for his country, while I can claim only fidelity to mine. The ingratitude of his nation went with him in his banishment but the sorrowful love of my countrymen follows me to my place of erile.—
To thee, my God, I offer thanks that thou didst deem me worthy to suffer for dear Hungary. Let me suffer afflictions, but accept them as propinatory tions, but accept them as propinatory sacrifices for my native land.

And thou, Hungarian nation, yield not to despair! Be patient; here, and weit thy time! Though all men forfeit thee, the God of Justice will not. Thy sufferings are recorded, and thy tears remembered. The blood of thy martyrs—thy noble sons—which moistened thy so!, will have its fruits. The victims which daily tall for thee are, like the ever-green cyutess over the graves. the ever-green cypress over the graves of the dead, the symbol of thy resurrection. The laces whom thy destroyer rection. The laces whom my destroyer excited against thee by lies and cuming will be undeceived; they will know that thou didst not fight for prestainence, but for the common liberty—that thou was their brother, and bled for them also. The temporary victors of our enemies will but serve to take the film from the eyes of the deceived people.— The sentiment of sympathy by our suiterings will inspire among the smaller States and races the wish for a fraternal confederation-for that which I always urged as the only safe pelicy and guar mice of freedom for them all.

"communication was recently addressed to our government by Lord Palmerston, relative to the expeditions alleged to have been fitted out in ports of the United States against Cuba, in violation of the spirit of our treaty stipulations .-This communication was answered by Mr. Crittenden, the acting Secretary of State, in a paper marked for its dignity This and high American tone, intimating in very plain terms that England had better attend to the administration of her own affairs."

The Journal's correspondent is usually well informed, otherwise we should much doubt the correctness of this statement-of the former part of it we mean, seeing that England had nothing to do with the matter. It must be admitted that Lord Palmerston is rather fond of meddling with the business of other people, but we can scarcely suppose that he would volunteer, even in a triendly tone, advice to the United States Government uniter such direumstances. Of course such interference would receive itemerited reproof at Washington.

TELEMACHUS IN HEBREW.-Fenelon's Telemachus, which has long since been translated into all the European Janguages, but which had never been rendered into any Eastern tongue, is just being published in Hebrew, in Posen, (Prussian Poland.) This edition is especially intended for the Jews of Russia, and the publisher, M. THE COUNSELLOR POSED. -At a trial in the Courtof Kings Bench, June, 1833, hetween certain published tweedledoms and tweedledges, as to an alleged pira. cy of an arrangement of the 'Old English Gentleman'-an old English air, by the bye---Tom Cooke, the composer, subcamad as a witness by one of the parties. On he cross examination Sir James Scarlett, atterwards Lord Abinger, for the opposite side, that learned counsel rather Lippantly questioned him:

'Now, sir, you say that the two meledies are the same, but different. What do you mean by that sir ?"

To this Tom promptly answered-1 said that the notes in the two copies were alike, but with a different accent, the one being in common time, the other in six-eight time; and consequently the position of the accented notes was

Sir James- What is a musical ac-

Cooke-' My terms are a guinea a lesson, sit.'

(A loud laugh.) Sir James, (rather ruffled)-'Never mind your terms here. I ask you what is a musical accent? Can you see it? Cooke- No.1

Sir James- Can you feel it? Cooke-" A musician can." (Great aughter.)

Sir James, (very angry)-'Now, pray, sir, don't beat about the bush, but explain to his fordship [Lord Denman, who was the judge that tried the cause] and the jury, who are supposed to know nothing about music, the meaning of what you call accent.

Cooke-- Accent in music is a certain stress laid upon a particular note, in the same manner as you would lay a stress upon any given word for the purpose of being better understood. Thus if I were to say 'You are an ass', it rests on ass; but if I were to eay, 'You are an ass,' it rests on you, Sir James.'

Reiterated shouts of laughter, by the whole court, in which the benc't itself joined, followed this rapartee. Silence having been at length obtained, the Judge, with much seeming gravity, accosted the chop-fallen counsel thus :

Lord Deniaga- Are you satisfied, Sir James ?"

Sir James (who, deep red as he naturally was, to use poor Jack Reeve's own words, had become scarlet in more than name,) in a great hulf, said-" The witness may go down P

And go down he did, anddst ren wed laughter in which all joined, parcieuntily the learned brothers, except one, who didn't see any joke in the matter.
